A Message from the Commander

Hello everybody. Our squadron year is quickly coming to an end, along with it my tenure as your Commander. This will be my last Quarterdeck report and our Bridge meeting on April 18 will be my last prior to our AGM on May 2. Please get those dates on your calendar along with May 6 which is the date of our COW. My thanks to everyone that helped me this year, especially all the bridge officers that made my job that much easier due to their efforts. It's because of the involvement of so many of you that Port Moody remains one of the most vibrant and active squadrons in the Pacific Mainland District.

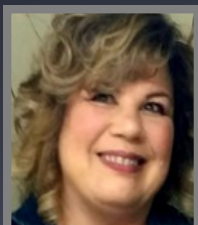

trict.

Specifically I want to give my heartfelt thanks to Lynn Meisl who is stepping down as our Admin and PCOC officer. Lynn has been a vital resource to our squadron and her exemplary service will be sorely missed, I wish her all the best in her future endeavours. Though Lynn says she will be around to provide assistance and guidance, she's leaving big shoes to fill.

This past year has not been without its challenges and Port Moody along with PMD and CPS National face some more in maintaining our relevance in today's safe boating market place. I'm confident that with the proposed incoming bridge members we will be well positioned to meet those challenges. Please show your support to them by attending our upcoming AGM and also our COW to celebrate your incoming Commander and bridge officers.

As most of you know we have our annual Easter cruise to Bowen Island coming up on April 14. Tickets for the COW will be available there, get yours early as I expect it to be sold out. You can contact our socials officer Melissa Forbister at Enjoyment and safety on the water require knowledge. Beyond the PCOC will take you to the next level in your boating education. Technology has changed the way we navigate. However, in order to use a GPS/chartplotter effectively, you should understand the use of paper charts and coastal navigation. The topics covered in this course; magnetic compass, global positioning and charts, navigation, conning, electronic navigation, anchoring, handling a boat under power, ropes lines and knots will increase your boating knowledge and make your adventures on the water safe and enjoyable.

This course also has a number of optional topics that will be taught depending on the needs of the students; these include tides and currents, canals and locks, towing, trailering, collision regulations and a check list for layup and launch. The fee for a second family member is lower as they are expect to share some of the material. The course will run for 6 Thursday evenings from 7PM to 10PM, with the exam on the final evening. The companion course to this is "Introduction to Navigation". It is strongly recommended that you take this course as well to obtain the skills necessary to navigate using paper charts should the electronic systems fail.

Would you bet $200?

That's the cost of a fine for not having the required safety equipment in good working order on your boat. Let CPS-ECP volunteers help you beat the odds.

Port Moody Squadron in partnership with Coquitlam and Burnaby Squadrons will once again be hosting our annual free Recreation Vehicle Courtesy Check (RVCC) this June 3rd, 2017 at Reed Point Marina. We will check your boat for free... and if you have everything you need, you'll get a Safety Inspection Sticker.

This sticker won't guarantee that enforcement officers won't ask to see your safety equipment, but as long as you don't take anything off the boat that was there when it was checked – you should be confident that you are in compliance and won't get a fine for safety equipment violations.

If you don't have everything... we will explain exactly what you should have on board so you can be sure to win that bet. And once you are boating safely, you're not just saving $200 - you could be saving your life.

Reach out to the squadron's RVCC officer Gary Coleman for more information at rvcc@portmoodypss.com

Special Feature

Packing Food for a Month Cruise -- Part 2: Menu and Supply List

~Submitted by Cynthia Oldham

Do you struggle with food provisioning for a long cruise? How do you create tasty nutritious meals, keep the ingredients fresh for that extended period, as well as still minimizing prep and cook time? In this series of articles I am explaining how I go about provisioning food for a month on the Pacific Swan which you should be able to use to extract a few details to make your next provision a little bit easier. Last month (in part 1 of this article) I went over the ingredients that keep for a month (and how to store them). Now, we can use that information to create the menu and supplies/groceries lists.

Below is a menu card (5x8") from a two week period from last summer. I work with a two week period; it is a manageable amount food to work with at one time. For four weeks, I make a second card for the second two weeks. These cards are placed in plastic pouches which are taped onto the fiberglass wall in the galley. (See image of a menu card on next page.)

Our menu card shows we use a 5 meal day: first breakfast, breakfast, lunch, dinner and mug-up. Not all people eat all meals; the children normally don't have first breakfast and I skip mug-up. Also, I cook only two meals a day; either Breakfast or Lunch and Dinner. The other three meals are assembled. The numbers after a menu item are the number of meals of that kind to pack.

First breakfast (Approx. 6AM) is quick food that my husband and I enjoy first thing in the morning. For breakfast and lunch (Approx. 9AM and 1PM), either one is cooked but not both. If we are at a location, then breakfast is the big cooked meal and lunch is packed for our adventure that day. If we are underway that day, then breakfast is quick and lunch is cooked when we stop for lunch. In the breakfast/lunch section the numbers after the meal item are the number of meals of that kind.

Dinner is always a thoroughly enjoyed meal. Note, there are the same number of boxes on the menu plan as dinners required. We don't pre-plan which nights are which meals, the children choose what they want to eat that night based on the unchecked boxes and other factors such as temperature, if we are underway, and how energetic we are feeling. When we decide on the dinner for that night we check it off. That way we know how many of which meals are in store. Mug-up is mostly for the children to give them some extra calories to get them through the night. If you are running low on easily accessible calories, the body reduces heat production and they wake up cold. For children's dessert snack; I take the children to the Costco cookie aisle and ask them to each to choose a box of snacks.

Once you have your menu plan filled out for the time period, I then go through each menu item and list the carbohydrates, protein, fruit/vegetables and others ingredients needed for that item (see provisioning list below). You can then go through each kind of food (e.g. carbohydrates) and add up the quantity of each item needed (e.g. tortillas) and put it on the "shopping" or "from home" lists.

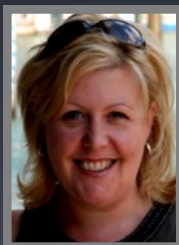

Once I have done the first card, I repeat the process for the second card. I am expecting to pick up some provisions on route for the second two weeks, so those are noted on the card and not added to the shopping list.

I hope you picked up a trick or two about food provisioning on a boat. Thanks for reading. If you have any questions post them on the PMPSS Facebook page, or email pacificswanboating@gmail.com.

Note: This menu is high in sodium.

The Captain's Table

Corn Chowder with Shrimp and Bacon

Ingredients:

- 5 slices Bacon, cut into small pieces
- 1 pound medium shrimp, peeled and deveined
- 2 cups chopped yellow onion
- 1 tablespoon fresh minced garlic
- 1 teaspoon paprika
- 1/2 teaspoon dried thyme
- Pinch crushed red pepper
- 2-1/2 cups frozen corn kernels
- 3 cups chicken stock
- 1 cup half and half
- Salt and pepper, to taste

Preparation:

~In a large pot or Dutch oven over medium heat, fry the bacon pieces until crispy. Transfer to a plate lined with paper towels. Drain off fat from pot, leaving 1 tablespoon.

~Add shrimp to the pot and cook until pink (about 3-4 minutes), stirring frequently. Remove shrimp with a slotted spoon and add to the plate with the bacon. Leave juices in pot.

~Add onions and garlic. Sauté for about 3 minutes, or until onions are soft and translucent.

~Add paprika, crushed red pepper, thyme, salt and pepper. Cook, stirring frequently for 2 minutes.

~Add corn, chicken stock and half and half. Stir to combine. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat to medium-low and simmer for 15 minutes.

~Using an immersion blender, blend about half of the soup until creamy. If you don't have an immersion blender, blend 2 cups of soup in a blender and pulse until creamy (exercise caution while blending hot liquids - blend small amounts) and return to pot and stir well.

~Serve with shrimp and sprinkle with bacon pieces.

Garnish with fresh thyme sprigs, if desired. Serves 4
