Happy 75th Anniversary CPS

In 2013, as we begin our anniversary year, CPS has 26,000 members in 155 squadrons across Canada. Over the year, Port Hole will celebrate the 75th anniversary, but CPS is more than just an iconic organization, and CPS history is woven from the stories of each individual who is or was a member. The Port Hole is looking for your stories, your personal encounters with CPS. Click Submit your story »

Diamonds, oh those precious diamonds...

Can you believe it is 2013 already? The sparkle of Christmas has come and gone, our fall classes successfully completed, and some very entertaining social functions are now in the history books too. As fun and entertaining as 2012 was, we look forward to an even brighter year ahead. Our winter classes are now well underway and we all look forward, with eager anticipation, to the warmth of the summer cruising season... Is it too early to dream of chasing those elusive dancing diamonds on the water?

Is there too much rain around our town? Do we long to get out on the water and feel the sunshine every day? About this time of year, I invariably get anxious for those warm days of summer. My mind begins to wander, remember and rehearse those priceless memories we all have. Do you

The Archives is looking for 4 past copies of the Roster / PropWash. This is the yearly publication that we all keep in our boats or homes to locate our fellow boaters. The years that we need are 2000, 1999, 1997, 1993. Please check your basements, attics, boats, and with any friends from other squadrons.

Who Wants to Be a Millionaire

It's Millionaires Night for new Students, as always hosted by the dynamic duo, P/Cdr Steve Clark & Dave Burrell! It's a quiz game, modelled on "Who Wants To Be A Millionaire". It is our final review before exam night. The students love it, and thanks to some quick witted showmanship from Dave, have commented that they are much better prepared for the exam. 🇨🇦

The Proctors provided the "lifelines"

This was such a good way to wrap up the course. It showed me where my strengths and weaknesses lie. It is easy to get out your manual to study and glance at the sections thinking to yourself "I know that and don't need to study this section" when in fact I do! Thanks to our "Hosts" Dave and Steve for making learning fun. And thanks to all the proctors who took time out from their busy lives to showed up every Thursday night to coax us through!" 🇨🇦

Transport Canada

Notice to Vessel Registry Clients

Transport Canada's Vessel Registry is changing. We will still provide the registry services you need, but from a central office in Ottawa.

This change will take effect in different parts of the country at different times, but the process will be complete across Canada by April 1, 2013.

Once we make changes in your region, you will need to send your completed application form and other documents to Transport Canada headquarters in Ottawa. Please keep in mind that it will take time for your documents to reach us once you mail them. It will no longer be possible for us to serve you in person, but we will make every effort to maintain our service standards. You can visit our website to learn more about them.

Transport Canada, Marine Safety and Security, is making changes as part of the federal government's overall plans to reduce the deficit and cut costs. The changes will also allow the department to modernize some of its practices, offer uninterrupted service and provide a single point of access for all Vessel Registry clients.

For now, you can continue to contact your Transport Canada Regional Office about vessel registry. We will let you know when we make changes in your region. We will continue to post changes on this website from time to time for you to view.

If you have any questions, please call us through the North American toll-free telephone number 1-877-242-8770 or VR-IB@tc.gc.ca.

As some of you may know, major changes are occurring at the Canadian Registry of Vessels ("CRV"). In an attempt to reduce the deficit through budget cuts, the Federal Government is consolidating the CRV into one office in Ottawa.

This means that the Port of Vancouver CRV office will permanently close on January 1, 2013, and move to Ottawa. The Ottawa office will be secured, meaning that public access for searches and transactions will no longer be possible.

As a further consequence of these budget cuts, we understand that the number of active Registrars will be cut in half; and, registration and verification procedures for Registrars may revert to pen-and-paper based logs. The effect of the changes will be significant delays.

It has been suggested that current processing times at the CRV will double or triple for Vancouver applicants registering new ships, or transferring ownership for existing ships. Furthermore, because the new CRV building will be secure, it will not be possible for any member of the public to attend the CRV upon closing to exchange a ship's registration for payment, as has been common in the past.

What is the solution to these impending changes?

We suggest that contracts of purchase and sale for vessels include holdback amounts and holdback periods which would ideally account for the expected increase in processing delays at the CRV. We also suggest that, like the current real estate practice of mutual undertakings between the vendor's and the purchaser's solicitors regarding the discharge of mortgages on the sale of real property, the parties to a ship sale mutually undertake to hold back appropriate monies and agree to vary or void a transfer of ownership if the CRV eventually rejects the documents or does not complete registration within the time agreed to between the parties.

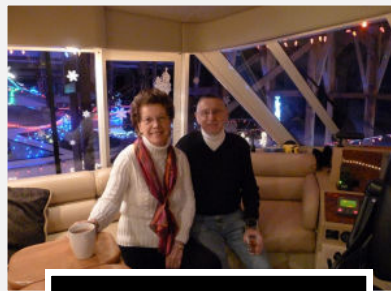

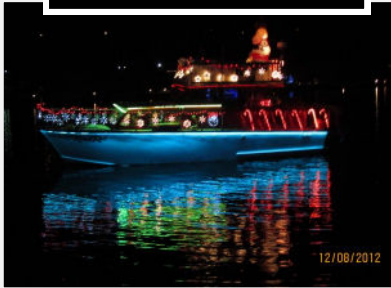

Please note that online searches of the CRV should still be possible in order to determine the registration status of a vessel.

Santa's Christmas Ships Cruise

Santa (Barry Wilson) & his sleigh ship, the Kona Kai

Melody & Dennis Hewson

The whole thing was started by the Baird brothers, Bill & Buss in the late 50s-early 60s, who would put Christmas trees on their three tugs and go around Port Moody harbor. Then one by one local boaters joined in.

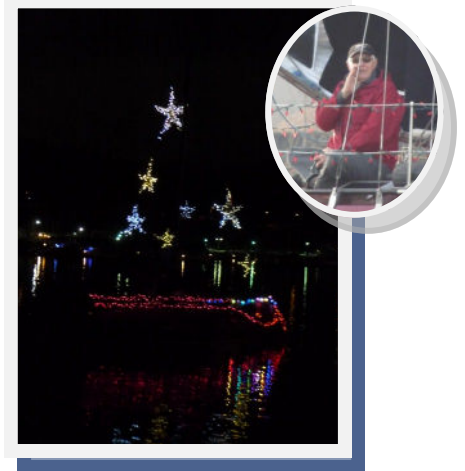

Back in the day Port Moody City had the "Christmas Tree Lighting Ceremony". Hundreds of people would show up. The crowd would fill the pier. They had a big bonfire, decorations, and everything. Rod McVickor would get a barge, tow it into Port Moody, and he would take local high school kids to the barge and they would sing Christmas chorales, and CKNW would broadcast them over the radio. There were only 1 or 2 boats like ours involved and we would take Santa into the old dock in Port Moody then take a quick tour up to the Ioco boat club and back home. In the Rod McVickor days when CKNW was broadcasting over the radio we could all tune in. It put all of us on the same page so to speak. Some of the high school choirs were very good and it added much to everyone's Christmas.

Port Moody's bon fire was as big as the one at Deep Cove. Our Santa's name at that time was Bob Banford who is now passed on. Another active couple at that time were Ron and Tomie Curties. His boat had 5 bells in lights and had them sequenced to blink on and off, cool for the day.

Dennis Hewson one year had his decorations green on the starboard side and red on the port so he looked like two different boats coming or going. The longest line of ships I can remember went from Kates Park up and through Deep Cove and back to Belcarra Park. My guess is about 80 ships in all.

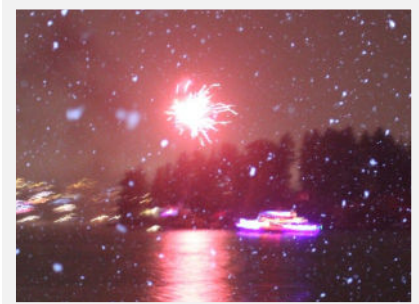

Then, requirements and things like liability insurance kicked in and the Barge, Kids, CKNW and Rod went away. [Before] the Ships from Vancouver would show up take a quick turn around and leave. At that time there were dozens of them. With the introductions of schedules rules and too much "requirements" their numbers decreased down to 1 or 4 boats. 🚩

Calm seas & fair weather made this year's cruise rank right up there with the best. On average there were 15 or so vessels each night, including some members of the Burrard Yacht Club.

Dan Greenwood set off a spectacular show of fireworks from his place on Boulder Island as the flotilla passed by. A little snowfall just added a special touch to the overall effect. 🚩

Sea of Rice

Many meals from few ingredients makes rice a great galley provision for easy cooking on a boat. Use cooked rice, and hearty meals are ready in 10 minutes using just a skillet, or saucepan, or no cooking at all. Here are few smart ideas to turn cooked rice into dinner! Substitute or add any ingredients as you have available or like instead.

1 Mushroom Risotto

Sauté a wild mushroom mix with garlic in olive oil. Stir in cooked rice with cream of mushroom soup and a splash of white wine or chicken broth to make creamy. Sprinkle with parmesan cheese & serve. 🇵🇷

2 Bean Burritos

Spread refried beans over a flour tortilla, then top with shredded cheese, cooked rice, and salsa. Roll up and wrap in foil to heat in oven until cheese melts. Serve with optional sour cream. 🇵🇷

3 Quick Paella

Sauté chopped onion red pepper & garlic in hot olive oil. Stir in Creole seasoning, salt, pepper cooked rice, cubes of cooked ham or sausage, canned (or fresh) cut up tomatoes & frozen peas. Heat through and sprinkle with chopped cilantro or parsley. 🇵🇷

4 Shrimp Fried Rice

Scramble & cook 2 eggs in olive oil and remove. Add more olive oil and sauté chopped onion. Add thawed frozen Asian vegetables and cooked rice; heat through. Stir in cooked shrimp, teriyaki sauce to taste, & scrambled eggs; heat through. Serve topped with peanuts and sliced scallions if desired. 🇵🇷

5 Rum Raisin Rice Pudding

Soak raisins in rum 20 minutes. In a medium-size saucepan over low heat, bring 1 cup milk, spoonful honey, and pinch salt to nearly scalding. Add 1 cup cooked rice and continue cooking over low heat, stirring occasionally, for 10 minutes, until rice is creamy and tender; adjust creaminess & sweetness to taste. Remove from the heat and stir in the rum-soaked raisins, along with splash of vanilla extract. Chill or serve warm sprinkled with cinnamon if desired. 🇵🇷 remember that early morning spectacular moment when the sun crawls over the hazy mountain and pours its warmth onto the watery fairway and witness the ocean transform from brine to breathtaking dancing diamonds? Proof that not just our late afternoon dock parties can be intoxicating. I can't wait to start chasing those millions of sparkling liquid diamonds again.

But until then, we are fortunate to have among us, individuals who have a way of chasing the rainy blues of winter away. We are so very lucky to have such great people who shine every day. Those individuals who so freely give of their time and efforts are truly the diamonds of PMPSS. Those diamonds in our Squadron (far too many to list here) who manage to keep this great vessel of PMPSS well-tuned and underway are the real treasures. Like the sparkle of diamonds on the water, PMPSS would not have the vibrancy it does without our very own diamonds.

To you, the numerous brilliant diamonds of PMPSS, thank you for making our winters productive and entertaining and especially for your continued excellent contributions to the greatest Squadron in Canada. 🇨🇦
